Copper

Copper, with a history of more than 10,000 years, is an important metal in modern industry. Featuring malleability, corrosion and high temperature resistance and recycled utilization, it owns superior electrical and thermal conductivity. Copper plays an important role in power transmission and generation, wiring in buildings, electronic equipment and new energy, thus brings us a comfortable, convenience and quality life.

We pursue superior quality to build an integrated industrial chain of copper. We are the first cathode copper producer that successfully registered on the London Metal Exchange (LME) both in China and the Chinese copper industry. Every day, 1/7 of cathode copper products launched on China's market are from JCC and various cooper products with core competitiveness are transported to all over the world.
